Q: This is driving me crazy! On page 137 of volume 15, there's something that looks like green onions in the lady's basket! There are three stalks, right!? But look at the same lady's basket on page 162! Look at all those onions! Is she going to make an onion stir-fry or what? An onion hot pot? What was that lady going to have for dinner!? I gotta know!!

A: What!? That shook me up. That postcard actually made me jump out of my seat. And yours wasn't the only one. When I was drawing that scene, someone said, "Look, there are more onions than there were Before." My staff and I laughed. "NoBody'll notice," we said. But we should know Better than to ever underestimate our readers.

When she first appeared.

The next time she appeared.

The lady's name is Maria Onion Bear (housewife, age 46). It was her second son's Birthday that day. She wanted to Bake a delicious onion cake for him, so she went all over town looking for the Best onions. So the answer is--an onion cake. Doesn't sound very appetizing, does it?

Q: Reader: In volume 15, page 171, Dr. Kureha tells the child to remember what she did. But why? Shouldn't he try to forget it? It must've been excruciatingly painful!! (sob)

A:

You've Got it all wrong. The doctor wants the Boy to remember that sometimes you have to endure a little pain to feel a lot Better. Isn't that OBvious?
